INTEREST IN FRUIT GARDENS
Pleasure Increased by Growing Fruits
Not Adapted to Climatic Region in Which Located.

The interest of a fruit garden may be greatly enhanced by growing there plants not adapted naturally to the climatic region in which the garden is located, as, for instance, the growing of figs as far north as the latitude of Philadelphia. The summers of the region are sufficiently long and warm to induce a strong growth in the fig, but as the fruits normally require a long period in which to mature, the plant becomes useless as a fruit producer unless sufficient protection is afforded to carry over winter the immature fruits set the previous fall. This can be successfully accomplished in several ways. The most hasty sort should be selected, in addition to which the fruiting shoots may be wrapped in matting, covered with straw, and the fruits thus successfully protected; or, if it seems desirable, temporary sheds may be built over the plants, and these thatched with straw or fodder sufficiently to protect them from frost. Then, again, semihardy sorts may be tipped over by cutting the roots on one side, bending the branches close to the soil, pinning them down, and then covering the whole plant with matting and earth or a straw thatch and earth. At the extreme northern end of the fig, it has been found that the use of earth is preferable to any other method, while at the south, where the slight protection is necessary, bending down and covering with pine boughs or thatching with cornstalks has proved most successful.

By the use of one or the other of these methods of protecting plants the peach has been grown and successfully fruited in the southern central part of South Dakota, along the Missouri river.

Besides these protective devices, sheltered places, where growth is retarded in spring, may be taken advantage of in order to hold back such early blooming plants as apricots, Japanese plums, etc. Apricots planted and trained on the north wall of a building are frequently sufficiently retarded at blossoming time to insure a crop, while if planted in the open and trained as a "standard" the fruit crop will be killed by late spring frosts.

For commercial purposes the use of most of these protective measures is precluded on account of expense. The commercial grower cannot indulge in such expensive devices unless he has the assurance of obtaining a fancy price for his product. In a home fruit garden, however, it is different. The expense of protecting a half dozen plants is trifling, and many amateurs will incur it for the sake of the novelty of securing fruits naturally adapted to other climatic regions.

TO GUARD AGAINST RABBITS

Too Much Expense in Many Tree Protection Methods—Wire or Poison Keeps Animals Away.

Cornstalks, grasses, tar paper, and other materials are used in wrapping fruit trees for protection against rabbits' points out F. S. Merrill, assistant professor of horticulture in the Kansas State Agricultural college. Every spring, however, it is necessary to remove these wrappings, and this requires a great deal of labor and in the long run is expensive.

"Successful results have been reported from the use of poisoned bait spread near the runways," said Professor Merrill. "Caustic paints also have been used successfully at times in reducing the feeding of the rabbits."

"The best method to protect fruit trees from rabbits is to band each tree when planting with a cylinder of galvanized screen wire. This method furnishes protection except when the ground has been covered with snow, which allows the rabbit to work above the screen. To prevent injuries to the trees, cotton often is stuffed in at the top between the wire and the tree."

THE EASTER SURPRISE

By LOUISE OLIVER.

It was the evening of Good Friday and the rain that had started in the early morning was still drizzling down into the cheerless streets. Donald, in the doorway opening his umbrella preparatory to a trip to the movies two blocks down, stepped aside to let the girl pass.

He just called her "the girl," for he didn't know her name yet. She was practically new to the building, and the little sign on her door and the one in the entrance announced modestly, "Piano Lessons," without any hint as to the name of the person who did the teaching.

Donald turned and held open the inside door for her. "Thank you," she said simply, with a ghost of a smile, and passed on up the stairs.

An uncomfortable feeling took hold of him, as it always did if he saw a child hurt or a baby cry, a feeling that somehow he was responsible for the fact that someone in the world was not happy and that it was up to him to do the best he could to make amends. It was such a dear old world. What was the use of being sad?

Donald's creed being practical as well as theoretical, he put his wits to work during the short walk downtown, and by the time he came to the dripping illuminated arch of the Lyric he had a plan mapped out that was calculated to banish dull care for the time at any rate, from the brow of the little music teacher.

By Saturday night "the Easter bunny," as he called himself, had such a layout on his sitting room table that magazines and cigar jar had been relegated to the floor. He had had no idea he was buying so much stuff, and when the bags and boxes had disgorged their contents he was appalled.

But when the bright red and green basket was trimmed up, with its nest of green grass, and its wonderful burden of chocolate eggs, cream eggs and eggs of all colors, pink rabbits, downy chickens and ducks full of bonbons, he decided that the artists were not at all dead and that he was going to get this gorgeous Easter surprise to his sad-hearted little neighbor if he had to wake the very dead themselves to do it.

After waiting for some time, holding laundry baskets with ease, he slid up the drop door in his own kitchen, pulled the rope and soon had his freight and himself shoved comfortably on the little shelf. A manipulation of the rope, and the cargo, human and festive, rose upward through the dark chute.

Donald touched the panel as he rose so that he would know when he came to the first door. This he knew to be his destination. But as fate would have it he went gliding on up through the dark, two stories instead of one and stopped at the drop door two floors above.

He disembarked and lifted off his freight as quickly as he could. Through the glass door to the fire escape came enough light for him to locate a table. He was in the act of laying his precious contributions upon this when the same light revealed a stout figure in the doorway which proceeded to yell lustily, "Help, murder, police!"

Mrs. Wilker, by all that was holy! And with his gorgeous burden for the poor little piano teacher! He could never explain! He must not be recognized.

Quick as a flash he sprang to the door, gave the key a quick turn and was out with his burdens.

Donald, down one flight, heard windows opening below. He was before what he thought was his own back door. It took just an instant to smash the glass, reach in his hand and turn the key. Thank heaven! he was home!

But surprise had not ceased. The light flashed and a girl in a blue silk kimono stood before him staring incredulously at the gayly decked basket, his tousled hair and knuckles that were dripping blood.

"You're hurt!" were her first words. "And you've been crying again!" he said in spite of the fact that his senses were swimming, and he had no idea how he, or the girl either, came to be in this strange kitchen. But when she got a piece of linen and began to tear it he realized she was at home and that he wasn't. But he had reached his destination at last.

He laid his offerings on the table. "I'm the Easter bunny," he explained incoherently. Then, feeling her mystification he told the whole thing while she tied up his hand.

The little sign "Piano Lessons" is gone now and instead there is one that says, "This flat to let." But downstairs lives a happy couple that laugh whenever Mrs. Wilker tells for the hundredth time how she alone routed a desperate burglar the night before Easter.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

PROTECT YOUNG TREES

Mice and rabbits like tree bark as well as children like candy, and it requires watchfulness to save young trees from being gnawed by these little pests.

The rodents are kept away by wrapping trees with wire netting, or even tarred building paper; but paper is not so sure protection from mice. A sack around the base of the tree will help to turn away mice, and if the snow also is tramped down around the trees the mice will not be so likely to get at them, because they work under the surface as a rule.

PRUNE AND SPRAY ORCHARDS

Neglected Fruit Trees About Most Unprofitable Thing on Farm—Test at Missouri College.

Does orchard pruning and spraying pay? The answer is found in the results of co-operative experiments conducted by the College of Agriculture in 40 Missouri orchards. These experiments extended over a period of three years. They show first, that a neglected orchard is about the most unprofitable thing on the farm; second, that the best managed orchards in Missouri are producing more profit per acre than any other farm crop.

The average returns per acre of these 40 orchards during the last three years has been as follows: Properly pruned and sprayed areas, total received, $176 per acre; net profit, $143 per acre. Untreated areas, total received, $18 per acre; net profit, nothing.

In order to obtain records of the results part of each orchard was allowed to remain in its previous condition—not pruned and not sprayed. The experiments in view of the results obtained, show conclusively the advantages of renovation.

WAY TO KILL CODLING MOTH

Effective Method of Eradication Is to Scrape Larvae From Branches During Winter.

All fruit growers that have watched the codling moth at all know that in the fall the full-grown worm, or larva, comes from the wormy apple, seeks a protected place under the rough bark or in the crotches of the trees, spins a cocoon about itself in which it remains inactive during the entire winter, writes George M. List, Colorado Agricultural college. With the coming of the warm days a change begins to take place, and shortly after the blossoms have fallen and the little apples, begin to form, the adult moth emerges from the cocoon to begin laying its eggs about the little fruit.

Each female lays on the average from 40 to 50 eggs, so if only a few of these chrysalises or hibernating larvae are destroyed the number of eggs to be deposited will be greatly reduced. A large per cent of the wintering larvae can be destroyed by scraping all round bark from the trees, especially in and about the crotches of the trees. If the scraping is done during the winter the larvae not killed in the process will be destroyed by the exposure and the birds.

The sooner fruit growers come to realize that this method of fighting this pest is almost as important as thorough spraying, the sooner will they begin to grow a larger per cent, of worm-free fruit.

TO RESTRAIN APPLE CANKER

Most Important Orchard Enemy Still Is Widespread Enemy—Continuous Attention Needed.

Correspondence with apple growers and inspection of orchards by the University of Nebraska indicate that the apple canker is still a widespread and ter most important apple enemy. Apple canker and blight are readily controlled by proper spraying. Canker, however, requires continuous attention if it is to be held in control.

Owners of infected orchards should write to the experiment stations of their states for further information as to the best methods of control.

DAIRY THE DAIRY

HAY SUPPLY FOR DAIRY COWS

Roughages Are Relatively Cheaper Than Grain, but Should Not Be Fed Exclusively.

"Because of the large hay crop and the small demand for it, roughages should be fed to the dairy cow," says Prof. C. C. Hayden of the Ohio experiment station. "Relatively, the roughages, like hay and corn stover, are much cheaper than grains, and hay is of unusually good quality. Roughage, of course, should not be fed exclusively, as such feeding might lead to constipation and death, even in dry cows and calves. Some grain is needed in small quantities, to replace such grains as corn and hominy. Leguminous roughages have proved far superior in numerous experiments to timothy for cows in milk."

Timothy hay is recommended for milking cows only in small quantities, to replace such grains as corn and hominy. Leguminous roughages have proved far superior in numerous experiments to timothy for cows in milk.

PROFIT IN DAIRYING

To make dollars in dairying, keep cows that are money makers.

Feed silage or other succulence, plenty of good roughage and grain in proportion to production. Supply plenty of fresh water. Entitle each cow to a ration. Produce the best possible products.

RECORDS OF DISASSISTANCE

Help Breeder Answer Questions From Prospective Buyer and Sire—Write for Form.

The dairy business is the increased price of feed forces the successful dairyman to secure the greatest return possible from his outfit. If he has registered cows he expects more for his progeny than if he had only grades. But to obtain more and enough more money to keep producing stock, L. W. Wing, Jr. of the Missouri college of agriculture, reminds the dairymen that he must be able to answer the following questions from the prospective buyer of a herd sire. Is the sire registered? Is the record of his dam? How many advance pedigree daughters and proved sons has his sire? And what are the records of his grandams and grandfathers? If the breeder is selling a registered cow he must answer: What is her record; the record of her dams and grandams and the ability of her sire and grandfathers to produce advance registry daughters and proved sons.

To answer these questions and meet the demands of buyer the breeder of purebred dairy cattle must do official testing. This testing is under the supervision of the various state colleges of agriculture. Breeders ready to take up this work or wishing further information, should write to the dairy department of the college of agriculture of their respective states.

CORK-BRICK BARN FLOORING

Non-Absorbent and Adapted to Needs of Farm Animals—Laid in Cement Over Concrete Base.

The search for a warm, non-absorbent flooring suited to the needs of horses, cows, hogs and sheep has led to the adoption of cork brick. The brick, as described in Popular Science Monthly, consists of finely granulated cork and refined asphalt heated and thoroughly mixed, and then molded under pressure into bricks nine by four by two inches. The flooring is laid in cement mortar over a sub-base of concrete and crushed stones or ash.

MILK ALL COWS THOROUGHLY

Little Extra Time Required After Usual Amount Has Been Secured Will Pay Dividends.

Sufficient time ought to be taken to milk the cows thoroughly even if so much other work of the farm cannot be accomplished.

A little extra time required to work and manipulate the udder by hand after the usual amount of milk has been obtained will pay dividends and sometimes make a profit where otherwise there would have been a loss.

A New Model Typewriter!

The No. 9
OLIVER
The Standard Value Writer
BUY IT NOW?

Yes, the crowning typewriter triumph is here!

It is just out—and comes years before experts expected it. For makers have striven a life-time to attain this ideal machine, and Oliver has won again, as we scored when we gave the world its first visible writing.

There is truly no other typewriter on earth like this new Oliver "9." Think of a touch so light that the tread of a kitten will run the keys!

CAUTION!

The new-day advances that come along with this machine are all controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models—famous in their day—never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of 84 letters and characters in the little fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

Thus writers of all other machines can immediately run the Oliver Number "9" with more speed and greater ease.

WARNING!

This brilliant new Oliver comes at the old-time price. It costs no more than lesser makes—now out of date when compared with this new discovery.

For while the Oliver's splendid new features are costly—we have equalized the added expense to us by simplifying construction.

Resolve right now to see this great achievement before you spend a dollar for any typewriter. If you are using some other make you will want, to see how much more this one does.

If you are using an Oliver, it naturally follows that you want the finest model.

17 CENTS A DAY!

Remember this brand-new Oliver "9" is the greatest value ever given in a type writer. It has all our previous special inventions—visible writing, automatic speeder 6-1-2 ounce touch—plus the Optional Duplex Shift, Selective Color Attachment and these other new-day features.

Yet we have decided to sell it to everyone everywhere on our famous payment plan—17 cents a day! Now every user can easily afford to have the world's crack visible writer, with the famous PRINTER, that writes like print, included FREE if desired.

TODAY—Write For Full Details

And be among the first to know about this marvel of writing machines. See why typists, employers, and individuals everywhere are flocking to the Oliver. Just mail a postal card. No obligation. It's a pleasure for us to tell you about it.

COL. ROOSEVELT offered to raise four divisions or more, if one was not enough. It never occurred to him to raise a company or a regiment.

Just the same, we should not delay war preparations while Germany is engaged in an academic discussion of republicanism. The Kaiser and the junkers are still very much in the saddle and driving hard.

Russia's citizens now have a new point of view. They have not only deposed their former rulers, but they have discovered that it is up to themselves to carry on the old rulers' numerous duties as efficiently as possible.

One reason the Kaiser is not asked to abdicate, according to certain German critics, is that the German people do not want the crown prince for Kaiser. The idea of getting rid of the kaiserdom altogether may soak in eventually.

Poor Farm Inmate Dies.

Ivy Wilkins, 35 years old, died at the county poor farm at 8 o'clock last Wednesday night, from the effects of an injury he received while walking along the I. C. tracks near West Point the latter part of March, when he fell from a trestle. The railroad company brought him here, and he was admitted to the county house. Interment was in the graveyard on the farm Thursday afternoon. Deceased was a native of this county, and a member of one of our prominent families. Several years ago he killed a brother with a poker, but was acquitted on the plea of insanity. Since then he had shown no symptoms that were dangerous, but he was regarded as of unsound mind. He had never married.

Don't miss it by failing to buy a Chautauqua season ticket, and pay more for single admissions.

Registration Day, Tuesday, June 5.

Sheriff Robert Wicklife has about perfected his plans for registration of all men who have reached 21 and have not passed 31 years of age. At every voting place in the county polls will be open, and anyone who fails to register will be subject to a year's imprisonment. Mr. Wicklife wants all the help he may need, and has a host of volunteers. Preachers and school teachers are asked to urge the importance of folks eligible in registering, as there will be no excuse accepted, if men are able to get to the polls.

Sunny weather will bring things along sharply, with the rains we have enjoyed, and everybody is feeling richer.

Great Photoplay "Civilization"

The announcement of the Queen Theatre for Monday and Tuesday, May 28 and 29th is Thos. H. Ince's million dollar spectacle, "Civilization," which comes to Greenville with the endorsement of the entire metropolitan press and public. It is seldom that the world is treated to such a treat as is in store for local playgoers, but in the present instance it is safe to say that everyone will be as pleased as New Yorkers, who are still flocking to the Criterion Theatre to pay homage to Producer Ince's genius. It would be folly to attempt a synopsis of this great battle drama, suffice it to say that you will be as astonished at the revelations unfolded before your eyes.

There has been a machine invented by which one can hear grass grow. It was hardly needed this week, as the rains pushed stuff up strong.

Tom Corwine a Human Phonograph

Tom Corwine, one of the well known entertainers to be enjoyed at the Lincoln chautauquas during their week here, has been called the human phonograph because he has the gift of imitating accurately every imaginable sound. He uses his lips and lungs and mouth to correctly imitate everything from a bird to a battleship, and it is said that he does it in such a way as to provoke gales of laughter. His friends declare that he is first cousin to a parrot, close kin to the mocking bird and a near relation to a phonograph. Mr. Corwine is one of the Lincoln features presented by them for the first time in this city.

The Slacker.

It's most unpleasant to be shot or slashed up with a sword; when battle rages, loud and hot, the unhorn man is bored. His neighbors gallop to enlist, all eager for the fray. "I'll stay at home," he says, "I wish; I have no wish to slay." And while the war is going on, and brave men sternly fight, he loafs at ease upon his lawn, and sleeps in bed at night. He's thankful that the stress and strife are far removed from him, that he can lead a peaceful life in times that are so grim. But when the battles all are done, and peace is here again, and from the scenes of triumphs won return the fighting men, when to their homes the heroes jog, with laurels on each brow—oh, happier a yellow dog than is the slacker now! "From dangers path I was exempt," the slacker oft hath said, "but now men view me with contempt—I would that I were dead! I would that I had sought the scrap, and sailed in, bit or miss; and if they'd shot me off the map, 'twere better far than this!" Ere you succumb to craven fears, to dread of strife and pain, think, think of all the future years, and of the world's disdain! Walt Mason.

Love is the treacle of life that helps to make palatable the rest of the meal.

Some kind of a new winter developed Tuesday, and the thermometer slipped below 50, with a high wind, and overcoats and wraps were dug up and put in use.

Mrs. J. L. Rogers has been suffering from a fall sustained Monday morning when she was thrown from the footboard of their car, her foot and side being bruised and slightly wrenched. The car was started unexpectedly to her. She is able to be about the home, and will be out very soon.

Victor tongs tone needles can be had from Roark. First time for a year this announcement could be made, but the factory is catching up with the demand.

Patriotic music in plenty at Roark's.

Hanna's Green Seal Paint

Flowers about the home never fail to lend a charm, and make the home more attractive,—and in the same way the use of Hanna's Green Seal Paint brightens and beautifies.

Wherever this paint is used dirt and dinginess must disappear, decay and deterioration of property is arrested, and a much more attractive home is always the certain result.

All the way from Paris just to sing for the Victor— then right back again. That's a trip Journey made expressly to sing with Caruso and Farrar the Trio from Faust on the Victor.

Was it worth all that trouble and expense? Come in and hear the record and see if you don't say "Yes".

Fly the flag.

May 31-June 4, Chautauqua dates here.

It's just next week, now, when Chautauqua begins. Get ready.

Only about two months until primary, and all candidates are getting down to true running trim.

Dr. T. L. Bailey was here from Madisonville last Sunday.

See the line of talking machines at Roark's, and select the instrument you wish.

Men between 21 and 31 are being much honored by being selected for military service, though they may not look at it that way.

I have a thoroughbred buffalo Jersey male, service, $1. Also have the silver lace Wyandotte, eggs 75c per setting. At. Curg Wright.

There are a lot of sweet girls who are kissed for the first—and last—time by their soldier sweethearts who are going to the far Eastern front.

Over half a hundred patterns of wall paper in stock at Roark's from 5 to 25 cents a roll. Get bargains at any price you pay.

Our people now know the great benefits of a Chautauqua, and are planning to get fullest benefit from every session.

Get any sort of sewing machine equipment from Roark.

Everybody entitled will vote on Tuesday, June 5, or wish they had.

Mrs. C. W. Roark was in Owensboro this week on a visit to Mrs. J. A. Roark.

Chautauqua May 31-June 4.

Why risk life and property when Rose does house wiring.

"Civilization," the great photograph, will be at Queen theatre Monday and Tuesday, May 28 and 29. It will be the greatest picture ever shown here.

See the Roark display of 44 rockers, every one at take-away prices, for room is needed on the display floor.

Goes To Chicago To Study.

Mrs. J. F. Rice left the first of the week for Chicago, where she will spend the summer in the study of music. Mrs. Rice has for seven years been in charge of the music department of our high school, and has done very effective work. This position she has resigned, but will continue to teach at her home.

The Victrola reflects music, philosophy and art. Hear its wonderful capacity at Roark's.

The variety of the Chautauqua program will contain plenty for every worthy taste.

In self-defense, and for the protection of the public, use a rubber fly swatter.

Fruits and vegetables are helping considerably to cut down the high cost of living.

Fight the fly, or he may whip you.

Mrs. F. K. Jamison, of Weir, has joined the Victrola host, and a new season of delight has been started for the good people of this section.

Better pay your city and school taxes this week, for penalties are to be added.

Buy the instrument the greatest artists of the world select to reproduce their supreme efforts. You can't fool them, and they select the Victrola. Let Roark demonstrate and explain the superior qualities.

Mrs. T. J. Morgan was here from Russellville, spending the week end with her sister, Mrs. Jessie L. Roark.

Fire Marshal Reports Good Work.

Mr. T. B. Pannell spent the week-end with his family here. He says that from his personal observation and from reports turned in by his deputies he finds that people all over the state are complying cheerfully with the regulations as to fire prevention, and that this conservation of our resources should amount to a vast sum, yearly.

We are going to have a happy host of visitors here next week invited by our people to help enjoy our great Chautauqua program.

Miss Ona Osborne and Mr. J. A. Rose were married by Judge J. J. Rice at his home last Sunday morning. They are at home on North Cherry street.

Good morning! Bought your Chautauqua tickets?

Hear John McCormack and chorus sing "The Star Spangled Banner" at Roark's. Hundreds of other selections which please, and you are invited to hear anything, any time.

"Canned" Church Services.

The day may soon dawn when a congregation will purchase an entire embalmed church service as one buys a can of soup.

Hymns on the talking machine, a sermon on the same instrument, and prayers made to order! Does it sound fantastic?

Any sort of instrumental music in churches is relatively new. Even singing was tabooed by many devout people in their churches for centuries, and still is by some. But now trained choirs and great organs are compelling features in nearly all denominations that can afford to pay the price.

I once heard the incomparable choir in St. Peter's at Rome on an Easter morning. Soon afterwards I listened to a fine opera in the Grand Opera House in Paris. The latter showed no better training than the former.

So the world has gradually worked up from a state where it prayed and preached under a tree until now it worships in mighty temples to the accompaniment of all sorts of the best music.

There are, however, a great many poor churches which cannot pay for good choirs, fine organs, excellent sermons, nor eloquent prayers. That is where science steps in to aid religion.

What could be simpler than to have Caruso, McCormack, Farrar, Galli-Curci, Rodeheaver, and half a dozen other world-known vocalists each do about ten hymns for a Victrola?

If one church had to buy the instrument and purchase such records it might more cheaply hire good singers. But a thousand poor churches might use the records as la the fashion of circulating libraries. Pass them around.

Then let another Talmage do the preaching for Victor records and a second Bishop Newman do the praying, circulating these records among the one thousand churches, and the embalmed service is complete.

In this way a cross-roads church could offer on a Sunday morning a sermon by a ten-thousand-dollar preacher, prayers by another ten-thousand dollar preacher, and hymns sung by three or four soloists whose combined fee for one evening of opera might exceed $5,000—Girard in Philadelphia Ledger.

Local Man Brings in Big Oil Well.

Mr. Ben Mayhugh, who has been head driller in the oil field of Barren county for the past several months, last week pulled through a gusher, the flow of oil and gas being greater than any in Western Kentucky. His friends here are much elated over this streak of good fortune, for he is a stockholder in the developing company, and his many friends hope he may get at least a million for his share.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Williams are in their modern new home on East Main-cross street, near the Methodist church.

Registration day for national military service has been fixed by the President for Tuesday, June 5, and that will be a very busy day all over this country, for persons of the male sex between 21 and 31 years of age.

Both the preceding Chautauqs have been splendid but this promises even more, in all ways, and the person who fails to attend will be a fool.
